Open enrollment in Affordable Care Act health insurance plans opened this week, and those without health insurance have only a month-and-a-half long window to sign up. From Nov. 1 to Dec. 2, those seeking insurance can sign up through their local Navigators or at one of several enrollment events held by Green- ville-based non-profit Access East throughout the enrollment period.

In Beaufort County, Access East navigator Ar- den Rest will be at Brown Library in Washington every Friday, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., according to Frank Huber. Access East’s communications co-ordinator. Health care Navigators are trained to help people determine which ACA plan best fits their needs.

AURORA — An additional $30,000 from the North Carolina Department of Natural and Cultural Resources will help the Au- rora Fossil Museum advance its mission of education and paleontological research in the coming year. During the state budget process, legisla- tors can submit proposals for funds to be allocated for certain projects and causes within their districts. As sitting N.C. Sena- tor Bill Cook prepares for retirement next month after four terms in the General As- sembly, the museum is among the projects he went on for this budget year. “This is one of the best places for tour- ism and education combined in North Carolina,” said Cook.

Commission to review plan for string lighting at four downtown sites

By MIKE VOGES
For the Daily News

The Washington Historic Preservation Commission, during its meeting Tuesday, is scheduled to consider a request to install string lighting in four downtown alleys. The Washington Harbor Dis- trict Alliance is seeking a certifi- cate of appropriateness to place the string lighting in two alleys off North Market Street and two alleys off West Main Street.

The Washington Harbor Dis- trict Alliance and the City of Washington would like to col- laborate with downtown prop- erty owners to install string lighting — within the Harbor District”, reads the applica- tion submitted by WHDA. The Market Street alleys include the one on the south side of Sheep’s Grill and Ward Lane. Harris Lane and Chalmers Drive off West Main Street are the other alleys.
